To-day interviewed A. T. Fields of 203 West Hanover Street, Trenton, N. J. Fields is in the real estate and insurance business. He informed me that he was not appointed agent for the premises at 336 South Broad Street until some time in 1914 after Mrs. Easton had moved out and that he knew nothing about her.

I called upon Lewis C. McClurg of 333 Spring Street, Trenton, N. J. and learned that he was the agent during the time that Mrs. Easton rented the place. That she came there about 1909 and remained there until the early part of 1914. That she was in financial difficulties just before she moved away and he understood had made an assignment for the benefit of creditors. That she owed $400. rent when she moved out. He says that he does not consider the woman reliable but does not seem to have very much on which to base that conclusion. He said he never knew of her running a disorderly house although on one occasion the Police had gone in there and arrested a Mrs. Burton and some Italian who were occupying one of her rooms. That he knew Mrs. Burton was a woman of low morale as at one time she had been a tenant of his and he had put her out of the house because she had too many men calling upon her. At the same time of Mrs. Burton's arrest, the Children's Society are supposed to have taken charge of her children.

I interviewed Elmer Rue, an auctioneer of 111 South Warren Street, Trenton, N. J. Rue says that he knew Mrs. Easton while she was in business at Trenton and that she had frequently bid in furniture at sales where he was the auctioneer. He was unable
